Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

This newspaper is politically independent, but it may as well be confessed, with a slight Republican bias. The record of the Republican party we believe from the time of Abraham Lincoln on, has generally been good. The record of the Democratic party proves it to have been more of a salutary and purgative influence on national life than one of progress From Cleveland, the "gold Democrat," through his eight years, with a Republican administration intervening, through the eight continuous years of Wilson, and now the three and one half years of Roosevelt, we find in the record many good things to be sure, but they were periods of national stock taking rather than advancement. Undoubtedly we should take an inventory at intervals, and should ferret out national faults. It is a good thing sometimes to make experiments, even costly experiments, to determine whether our governmental theory and practice are in accord or whether they have parted company, one becoming a sham, and the other an oppression. Abuses grow up in a party which remains too long in power.

But this one thing we feel sure of If President Roosevelt is returned to power for another four years, and he continues to spend money as wastefully as he has during his present term, it will be one hundred years before the people of this country elect another Democratic president.

As it looks now, the national debt and liabilities of the Roosevelt administration will be increased by another two billions between June 22 and the first of the year, making a total of approximately $16,000,000,000, attributable to the New Deal. No man can say what the national debt will be at the end of another four years of Roosevelt spending, but as matters stand today we, the tax payers, are some $35,000,000,000 in the red. Conceding for the sake of argument that on the whole the Roosevelt administration has been a good thing, just how much more of a good thing do we want? We firmly believe that we have almost reached the saturation point. Even a small boy can be surfeited with candy.

Subtracting recoverable loans under the Hoover administration from the borrowing of that period, and we find he added $1,100,000,000 to the tax payers burdens. Substracting the recoverable loans from the Roosevelt spending and we find he has increased the national debt burden by $12,800,000 in three and a half years. Nobody went hungry under the Hoover administration and nobody has gone hungry under the Roosevelt administration. However, the cost of keeping people from hunger, if we wish to assume that this fundamentally was the purpose of both administrations, has been nearly ten times more under the Roosevelt regime than under Hoover. And it should be remembered that in the Hoover term of office there were three years of depression.

The RFC was instituted under Hoover and has been continued under Roosevelt and it is to this Federal aid to recovery that the main items in recoverable debt are credited. As an institution of recovery it has proved one of the highest, if not the highest in value. It is noteworthy that nothing either administration did, or has done, has diminished, in any appreciable degree, unemployment The question of how many are now unemployed can never actually be known until a census has been taken, and President Roosevelt has repeatedly refused to do this. The American Federation of Labor puts out one figure, the Department of Labor another, and American Manufacturers association another. Averaging them up the estimate is still about 12,000,000 unemployed, or approximately the same figure as when President Roosevelt entered office.

FIGHTING ELM LEAF BEETLE

Victor Widmenr rented the spray outfit from Nevada City and is spraying the elm trees in Grass Valley a second time. Some of the trees were given a coat of the spray just before a heavy rain several weeks ago and the storm washed off the chemicals with the result some of the elm trees are quite heavily infested with the elm leaf bettle again.

Nevada City Was First Christened "Nevada"

A few interesting facts concerning the city's early history may interest visitors. Few places in California carry such a wealth of romance as Nevada City and Grass Valley, which are putting on a three day celebration over July 3-4-5.

Nevada City was Nevada until the state of Nevada was given the same name. Deer Creek tributary of the South Fork of the Yuba River, was first settled by three prospectors. Pennington, Cross and McCraig, who found the surface diggings promising and in September 1849 built a cabin there. Others followed, and the camp first called Deer Creek Diggings, became Caldwell's Upper Store. Meanwhile a succession of rich strikes were made and the news spread with its customary speed and the inevitable rush of miners followed.

By July 1850 the town had more than 400 houses and a population with several adjacent camps of 5,000. In January 1851 a newspaper of Sacramento estimated the number of those living within a radius of seven miles of the center of the city to be between 15,000 and 35,000; in this same area which included neighborly Grass Valley, were "150 stores, 14 hotels, two hospitals, church and a school and a city population equalling that of Sacramento." this in addition to a "a theatre, bull ring, and gambling houses far surpassing Marysville in riches and revelry."

Long before this the mines had exercised their often demonstrated talent for self-government by converting the mushroom camp into a town, by selecting in the spring of 1850 an alcalde and other officials and changed the town's name to Nevada. In 1851 it became county seat of a newly formed Nevada county. Thirteen years later when the state of Nevada was created the citizens of the town (after futile protests to Washington at this appropriation of their name) adopted the name of Nevada City.

The places in and about the town proved as rich as any in California. Miners tunneling into the gravel at Lost Hill took out as much as $6,000 a day; before this restricted area was worked out it produced $8,000,000. In their eagnerness for further rich finds prospectors are said to have invaded the center of the town and to have been prevented from digging up the streets only by the armed opposition of merchants.

Surface workings, however, were presently exhausted and quartz mining, involving large expenditures for machinery and equipment supplanted the hand worked placers.

Despite inexperience with this form of mining and the faulty methods used, some of these mines yielded very large profits. One ledge was so rich that its owners employed men to break the rock with hommers and pick out the loose gold; this primitive method netted them a profit of $200,000 in ten days. The development of quartz and hydraulic mining and the building of extensive canals and flumes to carry needed water, maintained the town's population after that of many others had melted away, and in the presidential election of 1856 Nevada cast the third largest vote of any California municipality. It was during this period that the picturesque town took on the appearance of performance and solidity that it retains in large measure today.

In the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce is an old rusty hand riveted nozzle found under an abandoned sluice box years ago in the first hydraulic workings in California. It is believed to be one of the improved medols developed by the late E. E. Matteson of Nevada City, originator of the hydraulic mining in California. His first attempt at washing gold bearing gravel through a system of riffles to collect the heavy yellow metal was made with the use of leather hose and a steer's horn for a nozzle. Long strips of leather riveted into sections of tubing carried water under pressure through crude nozzles to be hurled against the gravel banks.

Lester Allen Pelton of Camptonville invented the first successful water wheel which bears his name. Several of these large wheels may be seen in Nevada county today. The present day Pelton wheel is used in numerous hydro-electric power plants throughout the Sierra.

D. C. W. Chapman of Nevada City an authority on Nevada County history and member of the N. S. G. W., has stated that the site of Matteson's first hydraulic diggings is less than a mile from Nevada City at the foot of Sugar Loaf Mountain.

NOTED HI ALUMNUS WRITES OF HIS LOVE FOR HIS OLD HOME

Among the letters received by Mrs. Belle Douglas in response to the invitation she sent out to former residents of Nevada City to attend the Fourth of July celebration, is the following from Mr. Compton Gault of Hercules, California.

"My dear Friend:

I received your kind invitation to visit the old and dearly loved Nevada City on July 4, and it is with sincere regret that I cannot be with you to enjoy the rare pleasure of once again meeting old friends and old school mates.

"It is 49 years since I was graduated from the high school and it seems hardly possible so many years have passed since that eventful June, 1887.

"Time has brought many changes in most things, but it has not changed our great love for our old classmates and our dear old home.

"I had hoped to send you the dance program that we proudly issued for our graduation ball in '87, but tonight I am unable to locate it despite the fact that I am sure I have one.

"When the alumni get together on July 4, I wish you tell any of my old classmates who may be present that I often think of them and as often hope that the passing years have treated them kindly.

"While I cannot be with you in person on this occasion, you may be certain that I am there in spirit.

With sincere regrets and best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,"

COMPTON GAULT,

Class of 1887.

ABANDONED CAR IN HANDS OF POLICE CHIEF

Citizens of Park avenue reported a car to the city police Monday after the machine had stood in front of the Charles Guenther property since Saturday morning. At that time it was observed three or four young men got out of the car when they seemed to have trouble with it. After stretching themselves they disappeared in the July Fourth crowd, and the car remained. They left a good hat in the machine and examination in the pockets disclosed two old sacks one contained some expensive fishing tackle and a five dollar green back fell out of the other when it was held up.

Chief of Police Garfield Robson placed the machine, about a 1932 Chevrolet passenger car, in storage and wrote the State Motor Vehicle Department at Sacramento. He expects an answer on the car today. It is suspected that the car was taken for a ride to Nevada City by youths wishing to spend the Fourth in this city, and abandoned.

NEW WING ON COURT HOUSE NEARLY READY

The new wing to the Nevada County court house is practically complete, except a small amount of plastering and painting. The county clerk's office will be practically doubled and an 18x37 foot room to the rear will give the supervisors a new meeting place on the first floor instead of the third. Radiators and all necessary lighting and plumbing fixtures are installed. Large windows all around the new addition and a long row of sky lights give a fine lighting effect in County Clerk R. N. McCormack's office.

S. P. STREAMLINER FOR S. F.-L. A. SERVICE

High-speed trains of lightweight streamline design will be placed in daytime operation by the Southern Pacific Company on its coast line between San Francisco and Los Angeles about January 1, next according to announcement by A. D. McDonald, president.

Two complete trains, including extra units and reserve motive power, are to be built at a cost of approximately $2,000,000 to furnish daily north and southbound service, McDonald said. The tentative schedule calls for departure from San Francisco and Los Angeles at eight a. m., with arrival at destination not later than 6 p. m., or at least an hour faster than the best train time now made between the two cities.

The streamliners will be 12-car trains, including chair cars, parlor cars, parlor-observation car, dining car and tavern car, powered with streamline steam locomotives, it was stated. They will be air-conditioned throughout. Each train will have a capacity of 465 passengers.

To be known as the "Daylight," a name long identified with fast coast line service on the San Francisco-Los Angeles run, the new trains will be "brilliantly colorful" in keeping with the region through which they will operate, according to the company. The cars are to have extra wide windows to facilitate sightseeing.

Mr. W. H. Moore, has returned to Pittsburg, while his wife remained for a longer visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Scadden.

Mrs. Justin Hearst and infant son were down town yesterday for the first time since they left the hospital two weeks ago. Mr. Hearst, who has a responsible position in a Tonopah, Nev., gold mine, came over for a short visit with his wife and family in Nevada City recently and returned.

Newmans to Stand Trial For Murder

At the preliminary examination of Monte and Merritt Newman, Wednesday before Justice of the Peace Walter Mobley, the two brothers, charged with the murder of Christian Meyer in the early morning of January 12, were held to answer in the superior court.

The testimony of Miss Gwendolyn Coats, who was engaged to marry Meyer, and who was the chief witness of the shooting, was damning. She identified the two accused men, who wore white handkerchiefs over the faces, by the voices, eyes and build. Attorney E. H. Armstrong, counsel for the accused men, was unable to shake her testimony in any material respect.

Her story, told on the witness stand, under questioning of District Attorney Stoll was substantially, as follows:

Miss Coats, in answer to the question "did you know Chris Meyer?" stated "I went with him for eight months."

She stated she last saw Meyer alive at the Nevada City Sanitarium on January 12th. About midnight of January 11, she said she left her mother's home at Glenbrook for a ride with Meyer and they drove out the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway.

CAR STALLED

When Meyer attempted to turn the car to come back to Miss Coats' home he backed into the ditch and was stalled, and was unable to get out He left the car and put rocks under the wheels in his efforts to get out of the ditch but without success.

"He told me," she said, "I would have to drive the car while he pushed it from the rear and worked for quite a while trying to get out"

She then related that a green Ford car passed them, but the driver did not pay any attention to them. In about three minutes a tan cab drove by and then backed up and asked them if they wanted any help.

ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP

Persons in the car told Meyer and Miss Coats that somebody had attempted to hold them up farther up the road, but this testimony was stricken out on the objection of counsel for the defendants.

The man in this car then got out a tow rope and pulled Meyer's car out of the ditch and across the highway and the car was pointed toward Nevada City. The car would not start and Meyer got out with the crank and tried to crank it, showing the girl how to work the choke.

THE GREEN CAR

Then a green two-door Ford sedan came along side of them, stopping with the engine of the car about opposite the center of the Meyer car.

She said the driver got out on his side of the car. He was wearing a black sweater or sweater coat, a gray hat with a black ribbon around it and a white handkerchief tied across his nose and under his eyes.

The witness testified that the other man got out on his side of the car from the passengers' seat in front. He had on a tan overcoat or raincoat, and "I don't know whether he wore a cap or hat," and he also was masked with a white handkerchief.

She said the man who got out first was tall and well built, and the other was smaller. This latter man had a gun in his hand.

ATTEMPTS ATTACK

"The tall man," she said, "was standing beside me. He opened the door of the car and told me to get out of the car and lie down on the highway."

"Chris tried to scare him and said he would shott The short man said, 'Go ahead partner, we will shoot, too'."

"About this time another car came by and we hollered for help. The car kind of slowed up; they looked back and then went on."

"The tall man grabbed me by the arm and dragged me out of the car, and Chris hollered for him to leave me alone. He jumped out of the car and came around the end of the car and told him to leave me alone."

"He offered them money," she said, "and the man asked him how much he had and Chris said about a dollar and he gave his wallet to the

COUNCIL TO USE GAS TAX FUND ON MAJOR STREETS

The city council met last evening with W. G. Tinney, of the State Highway department, who came up from his Marysville headquarters to advise the board regarding the use to be made of the city's share of the gas tax. Under the law of 1933 cities were awarded a quarter of a cent for the maintenance of their streets. Last September another quarter was added to the city's share, which portion must be spent on the city's major streets.

However, this last quarter cent must be accounted for by municipalities to the State Highway Commission who examine the city's plans for spending the money, approve them and when the work is done receive a report of the use to which the money had been put.

The city council proposes to spend the money received since last September in the improvement of Main, Winter and Clay streets, with the probability that some of it will also be used on Nihel street between Adams and Nimrod.

Count The Costs

(Contributed)

Projects come and projects go, these days, with a rapidity that leaves us a bit bewildered as to which is for what purpose and why. But this week California is starting one unquestionably all to the good.

The most complete survey of our highway system ever undertaken is now getting under way. Armed with $300,000, mostly Federal money, the State Division of Highways is sending out more than 200 statisticians, engineers and other workers to map every road in California, study needs for new ones, analyze the flow of traffic, and find out what's what generally.

Thus far they've announced only one study bearing directly on costs and who pays them. That will deal with the amount of traffic originating in various districts, compared with the funds those districts contribute to the total bill for highways.

Costs, it seems, ought really to be the most important part of the survey. After all, the ideal we're working for in highway financing is to have not only each district, but each vehicle, each type of vehicle, pay its share.

One expert, impressed with the fact that tax-burdened motorists seemed to be doing most of the paying, and commercial vehicles most of the wearing out, summed up our aim rather academically in a two-point program, thus:

"Determine adequate standards for the present highway system; establishing those standards so that there would be a proper allocation of facilities according to the vehicles that require them.

"Establish and enforce a system of contributions for highway use which would allocate such contributions among vehicles according to the use that they make of the facilities they require."

Skyrocketing Spuds

(Contributed)

As potato prices go skyrocketing, the modest, unassuming staple that we've always taken so much for granted has emerged from obscurity to take a bow in the spotlight of public interest.

Today twenty-five cents will purchase only five pounds or less of No. 1 tubers, whereas a year ago you could buy twelve pounds for that. American housewives are indignant about it, columnists are commenting about it, and husbands who once ate spuds with indifference are pausing somewhat ruefully to notice how they really taste.

But there is jubilation among potato farmers of Kern county and the delta districts of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. They have good crops despite the nationwide shortage. And California's potato yield, while it's never shared the glamour attaching to our more famous products, is nevertheless worth some $10,000,000 in a good year.

Housewives complain and farmers rejoice when prices are high. It is the old paradox. But fortunately we have advanced a long way from the post war period, when dissatisfaction was rife on both sides because farmers got virtually nothing of the exhorbitant prices housewives were obliged to pay.

Mass method retailing developed, and its direct-to-consumer process cut out many wasteful distribution practices that contributed to the high cost of living in those days. As we move toward greater efficiency in marketing, price fluctuations will certainly be less painful for all concerned.

Meanwhile, perhaps the once-lonely potato deserves all the attention it is now getting. True a spud isn't beautiful, like an orange, say, or a peach or a bunch of grapes. But it's there doing heavy duty in practically every dinner you eat.

CCC PREPARES BOYS FOR JOBS

That the Civilian Conservation Corps prepares its members for self support is revealed by reports received by the U. S. Forest Service from CCC camps located on the national forests in California, according to a statement by S. B. Show, U. S. Regional Forester for California.

Records gathered from several of the camps show that 85 boys have obtained jobs upon completion of their enrollment, 48 in commercial work and 37 in conservation work in the national forests. According to Mr Show this is only a partial record, and it is his belief that a great many more have profited by their training and experience in the Corps.

Sixteen CCC boys obtained work in road construction as drivers of trucks, tractors and other road building machinery for contractors. Twelve entered the skilled crafts. Three are with survey crews, three obtained clerical positions and the others are employed in various industries. Some of the boys who were taken by the Forest Service are employed in forest fire prevention and suppression work in such positions as lookout, patrolman and truck drivers and others are handling road building machinery.

In addition to practical training on the job members of the CCC are afforded opportunity for studies in vocational work and business practice through the educational system administered by the CCC educational director in cooperation with the Forest Service. Over thirty correspondence courses are made available to the CCC by the Correspondence Extension Service of the State Department of Education.

COURTS DISMISS TOO MANY CASES OF BAD DRIVERS

SACRAMENTO, July 10.—Courts must co-operate with California highway patrol officers if the state's roads are to be made safe, says Ray Ingels, director of motor vehicles, in announcing that support from the bench is far from perfect.

Ingels put his case squarely before the people and the courts today when he asked the public to examine the records of the various counties in the first four months of this year to determine whether or not proper punishment is being meted out to dangerous drivers of motor vehicles.

San Mateo county, according to Ingels' figures, showed the greatest number of traffic case dismissals in comparison with fines in arrests made by highway patrol officers in the period from January 1 to April 30, the peninsula county's courts having dismissed 937 persons and fined 1066 out of a total of 2003 arrests. In the four-month period, 21 persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents in San Mateo county, said Ingels in calling attention to the fact that what has been termed the "most dangerons" highway in the state passes through the peninsula county and in pleading wit the courts to help make San Mateo's roads safe.

Other outstanding counties which had high records for court dismissals, and in which Ingels urges study of traffic control by judges and citizens, are the following: Fresno, 1017 arrests and 443 dismissals; Marin, 638 arrests and 267 dismissals; Sacramento, 600 arrests and 237 dismissals; Merced, 683 arrests and 245 dismissals, and San Bernardino, 1061 arrests and 303 dismissals

Nevada County records but 25 dismissals out of 164 arrests.

"In bringing these figures to the public," said Ingels, "I realize I am offering myself to criticism. However criticism is invited if it will bring about an understanding with the courts and the people of the serious need for punishment of the potential traffic killer whose offense today may only be 'reckless driving' of 'speeding'.

"Ticket fixing in the department of motor vehicles is not tolerated and highway patrol officers are prohibited from court interference. By the same token, California's citizens are justified in expecting judges to bear down on the traffic violator who tomorrow may be a highway murderer."

Mr. and Mrs. Otto E. Schiffner and son, Robert, arrived home Wednesday forenoon after a vacation of several days in which they drove by car over 4,000 miles. While away they visited several national parks among them being Yellowstone, Glacier, and Yoho, going on to Vancouver, Canada and Lake Louise.

Your local Bank...Yes...

WEST'S OLDEST BANK GAINS IN SIZE, STRENGTH

Continued advances in total deposits and resources were reflected in the figures of Wells Fargo Bank's mid-year statement of condition, issued at the call of the state superintendent of banks. Resources stood at $247,636,171, compared with $227,667,428 a year ago. Deposits made up $224,052,008 of the total, about 12 per cent larger than last year's.

Totaling the cash, United States Governments, and other bonds, and relating them to total deposits, a liquidity ratio of 81 per cent is revealed, which is slightly higher than that of a year ago.

The statement shows a moderate increase in the bank's undivided profits, now $3,481,740.22, as compared with $3,421,284.85 a year ago and with $2,656,856.89 at the end of June, 1929.

This year the bank entered its 85th year, having been established during the gold rush days of March 1852. Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust Co., the oldest bank in Western America, is the direct descendant of Wells Fargo and Co., Banking and Express.

From the first the historic Wells Fargo Express played a leading part in the commercial development of the west—carrying miners, gold, mail, and freight between San Francisco and the "diggin's" of the Mother Lode region, to the Comstock Lode in Nevada, then wherever else the bonanza lure of gold or silver drew the western pioneer.

Building up its far-flung system of communication, Wells Fargo established or consolidated with such famous stage coach lines as both the southern and central Overland Mail routes, the Pioneer Express, and numerous tributary "feeder" lines; and operated the western division of the Pony Express in 1861 during the latter half of its brief but brilliant career.

The banking end of Wells Fargo, paralleling the express, grew rapidly, affording the miner safekeeping of cash for his gold, collecting his drafts, supplying exchange on eastern cities or his homeland. Until 1876, banking and express departments worked side by side, when growth of the business dictated the separate establishment of Wells Fargo & Co.'s Bank which continued as such until 1905, when it merged with the Nevada National Bank, later consolidating with the Union Trust Company.

BOTULISM CASES SHOW INCREASE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—A definite increase in the incidence of botulism poisoning cases in the United States has been noted in the past six years, "and in 1935 the single or group intoxications reached the alarming figure of twenty two," Dr. Karl F. Meyer, director of the Hooper Foundation of Medical Research of the University of California, states in the current issue of California and Western Medicine.

"Until everyone has been taught that all vegetables or other nonacid foods home canned by the boiling water or oven process must be thoroughly boiled before they are served, botulism intoxications may be anticipated," the article warned.

"Every agency, particularly those distributing glass jars for canning, bears a heavy responsibility. They should participate in the education of the masses as to the necessity for safe preservation of nonacid foods and for boiling all home-canned vegetables before use. The commercial packing industry has done its share to remove the botulism menace. The public health workers, the economics teachers and the farm advisors have done their part. The next step must be taken by the distributors of the containers commonly involved in botulism in recent years. They should discontinue the publication and dissemination of unsafe processing procedures."

The mortality rate in botulism remains at 65 per cent of the cases, the article says. However, in the relatively few cases in which early serum therapy was instituted, the fatality rate has been definitely reduced.

"The rural sections of the western states in the following order, viz, California, Washington, Colorado, Oregon, Montana, Idaho and Nebraska continue to furnish the bulk of the observations." the article said.

JULY 16 LAST DAY TO REGISTER! DO IT NOW

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—California has 3,939,941 eligible voters, men and women 21 years or older, of whom only 2,900,000 have registered to date, leaving approximately one million unqualified voters in the state, Earl Warren, Republican National Committeeman for California, declared here today.

"California citizens are faced by two facts," Warren said. "First, it is estimated only 73 per cent of the eligible voters of the state are registered today; second, only 67 per cent of the registered voters of California cast their ballots in a presidential election.

"This is a condition that must be remedied because 1936 is one of the most vital years in the nation's political history. The Republican party has the right candidates in Gov. Landon and Col. Knox, and has a constructive and progressive platform. It is imperative for every Republican in the state to register now and qualify for the exercise of his legal rights as a free American citizen November 3.

"California is the fastest growing state in the Union from the standpoint of population, the increase from 1920 to 1930 being more than 2,250,000. This ratio has been maintained during the last six years."

Eligible California voters today, shown by the U. S. Census, follows:

Ages 21 to 24	475,127
Ages 25 to 29	496,029
Ages 30 to 34	482,664
Ages 35 to 44	932,119
Ages 45 to 54	725,026
Ages 55 to 64	462,851
Ages 65 to 74	263,310
Age 75 and over	102,815
TOTAL	3,939,941

"Republicans of California should register to end the New Deal regime which has spent $22,500,000,000 on the basis of an $11,200,000,000 income—more than two for one," Warren stated. "The nation now has a gross debt of $33,950,895,453, the largest in history. This spending orgy can be stopped by the election of Gov. Landon, but Californians cannot participate to full strength unless they qualify as voters by registering. July 16 is the last day to register for the August 25 Primary election"

Frigidaire Creates Sensation With 5 Year Protection Guarantee

Cliff DeBerry believes you should buy your electric refrigerator on proof. There have been many sales stories on this kind of gas, of that kind of door, or some other gadget. That only the "Hoosit" refrigerator has.

Do you know that 70 per cent of your money goes into the heart of your refrigerator, the mechanical unit, and only 30 per cent into the cabinet? Would you buy any kind of an automobile to get a cigar lighter or a spot light? Do you know it would take 50 years to put the same number of hours on your washing machine's mechanism and motor (the average wash for a family of four takes 2 hours a week) that the average refrigerator gets in four years. Do you know that if you were to drive your automobile for the same number of hours (at 30 miles an hour), that you would run it 15,768,000 miles? Automobile records show that the automobile is traded in at 30,000 miles so you would be wearing out 525 automobiles! In this number of miles don't you think you would have fan belt trouble, generator brush trouble, gear trouble, stuffing box trouble, oiling troubles, armature trouble, connecting rod trouble, piston trouble, oil pump trouble or valve trouble?

A great many refrigerators have these troublesome automobile parts. Why not buy a genuine FRIGIDAIRE that has NONE of these parts, that give more or less trouble wherever they are used?

We will prove the following with FRIGIDAIRE—

1. Only three moving parts, running in a bath of oil.
2. The refrigerant or gas that FRIGIDAIRE uses (F114) is safe, we will drink it, breathe it, pour it on fire, put a gold fish in it, pour it on clothing—because it is super safe!
3. Lower operating cost with the Meter-Miser. Meter-Miser watches your electric meter with a "miserly eye."
4. "On guard"—FRIGIDAIRE'S food safety indicator, located inside the food compartment gives you visible proof that your food is being protected in the safety zone below 50 degrees and above 32 degrees on the hottest days.
5. Faster freezing — smoother desserts and more ice.
6. More useability.
7. 5-year Protection Plan, in black and white. Because Frigidaire has none of the old-fashioned troublesome parts.
8. In fact, for lower operating costs, safe food protection, fast freezing, quiet operation and complete usefulness this new FRIGIDAIRE sets entirely new standards with its improvements and modern beauty.
9. A FRIGIDAIRE is so easy to buy at Cliff DeBerry's. It really pays for itself.
10. You can pay as little as 90 cents a week on some models and a larger family size with 10.7 square feet of shelf area. Freezes 83 large ice cubes, has three large trays, has automatic defrosting and many more features too numerous to mention, for only $1.60 a week.

Look at them all but be sure and see the new Genuine FRIGIDAIRE on display at Cliff DeBerry's before you buy.

Not only do we offer you the best refrigerator you can buy when we recommend FRIGIDAIRE but we can also give you the most liberal terms you can get anywhere! Open evenings.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING IN NEW REFRIGERATORS

With the slogan, "At last! Something for nothing. An electric refrigerator pays for itself," the third annual electric refrigerator campaign is now being held by local dealers at the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., offices, under the sponsorship of the Electric Appliance Society of Northern California.

Pointing to the savings made possible in the family budget, leading dealers of this city state that tests made by reliable authorities have proved conclusively that a modern electric refrigerator will save its users considerably more than its original cost in a period of time. Housewives can take advantage of special prices offered by most food stores and can keep a week's supply of meats, vegetables, eggs and other foods, fresh and sweet in an electric refrigerator.

The electric refrigerator also makes possible other savings through the elimination of food spoilage and the ability of the housewife to prepare leftovers into tempting meals that take the place of more costly foods.

Savings in the budget are not the only advantages as buying in advance eliminates many trips to the store and gives the busy home makers more time for leisure and recreation.

Electrical appliance dealers and department and furniture stores here have electric refrigerators of all makes, sizes and prices. Practically every recognized brand has back of it years of experience and research assuring satisfaction and long service.

Women are exclaiming over the beauty of the new refrigerators, with their graceful, symmetrical streamlines and their superb finish. Yet the outward appearance is merely a reflection of the superlative efficiency and convenience of the interior.

Refrigerators show a great improvement in construction. Increased accessibility, and storage space are brought about by the use of revolving, removable or collapsible shelves and other marvelous performance has been perfected with this age of advanced achievement, giving the new refrigerator more power, longer life, lower operating costs, faster freezing. In fact every possible means for the preservation of food and the preparation of frozen dainties makes the modern refrigerator a triumph from every standpoint.

The advantages of the modern electric refrigerator are so great that the housewife who has enjoyed them could fill a book on the subject. The preparation of frozen desserts, the new "cold cookery" and many other features not only provide "appetite thrillers" for the entire household, but make entertaining easier and more enjoyable.

An electric refrigerator is an investment in health and happiness in the home and a year-round necessity, enabling its owner to serve better meals at lower cost.

With all these advantages it is easy to understand how an electric refrigerator pays for itself, thus really providing "something for nothing."

RESERVE BANK NOTES HIGHER FOOD PRICES

Consumers paid slightly higher prices for food in the principal cities of the Twelfth Federal Reserve District during early June than a month earlier, according to the monthly review of business conditions of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

The cost of living for families of wage earners and lower salaried workers in Los Angeles, Portland, San Francisco and Seattle declined slightly during the three months ending April 15, 1936, the latest date for which this information is available. Moderate declines in the food costs more than offset small advances in rents and house furnishing goods prices Living costs in these Twelfth District cities were about 20 per cent below the 1923-1925 average.

STATE RELIEF DECREASED

There are twenty four counties in California which no longer receive state funds for relief, Nevada County being among the number. Unemployment state relief has shrunk from four or five million a month at the first of the year to only about a million and a quarter for July.

Forms were removed from the cement on the first story of the new city hall in this city yesterday and give some idea of the size of the large building.

LIGHT PEAR CROP IN COUNTY

County Horticultural Commissioner L. G. Lageson reports that the pear crop of Nevada County is not as large as last year, but the late wet season is assisting in giving promise of large fruit. The crop will be ready to harvest in about two months. Pear harvest started in the Sacramento Valley two weeks ago.

He stated the blight is light this year, which is a most encouraging report. This disease which kills limbs of growing trees has been bad in the pear and apple orchards for about two years. The suggested remedy is cutting and burning affected limbs. Many orchardists in this section are working with the blight and the result is the improved conditions.

GOVERNMENT IS MIRROR OF ITS CITIZENSHIP

(By RALPH H TAYLOR)

Governments, by and large, mirror the lives of their people—reflecting their personal habits, their standards, their primary characteristics!

The individual, looking hastily in his mirror for reassurance, may be tempted to challenge the accuracy of that statement, but fundamentally—as regards a majority of the citizenry—it remains as true today as it was during the time of the Roman Empire.

Government and the rank and file of its citizens in the United States, for example, discovered installment-plan buying almost simultaneously And the partial payment cycle, which began with automobiles, radios and electric refrigerators, extended rapidly into governmental projects which have brought the bonded debt of the nation to an appalling. total

Looking at the situation at its worst—as the invididual must do, when the first of the month rolls around—the United States government owes approximately thirty billions of dollars. To this must be added another twenty billions of debt piled up by states and other local governments—or a grand total of more than fifty billion dollars!

And the penalties of debt, whether with government or the individual, multiply, pyramid—and then multiply and pyramid again. Back in 1910 for nstance, the interest and redemption payments on California's public debt (state and local) amounted to $5,200,000 annually. By 1920, the annual payments for interest and redemption had amounted to $23,300,000. Today they total nearly $75,000,000 annually!

And the end is not yet.

Without arguing the merits or demerits of the legislation, the additional cost of the various social security measures already adopted or proposed will add at least ten per cent to most payrolls of the country, increasing the burden on business and "upping" the cost of living for the average citizen.

No one will discount the desirability of a proper system of health reserves for those who are unable to finance themselves. No one will deny that security in old age is a splendid objective.

But no one seeking these objectives should fail to count the cost. If the farmer wants more services from government, he must be prepared to pay for them. If the business man wants additional services, he must be prepared to pay for them. If the business man wants additional services, he must expect to pay more to government and less to himself. And if all of the people—employees and employers, old and young—want more protection from government, then all of the people must expect to pay more money for it!

Basically, it becomes a problem of "Who can do the job best—government or the individual?" If the answer is government, then the individual must prepare to put aside additional contributions to government, just as he must add to his monthly payments when he yields to temptation and moves into a bigger house, or buys a bigger automobile.

Perhaps one of the greatest needs in California today, from the standpoint of good government, is that the average citizen should come to the realization that the governmental budget presents exactly the same problems as a home budget. It must be governed by income—by ability to meet the payments!

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Chapman had as holiday guests, Mrs. Dora Roach and Miss Dorothy Valentine of San Francisco and Mrs. Vera Willis of Berkeley. Mrs. Roach and Mrs. Willis are sisters of Mrs. Chapman and former Nevada City residents. Miss Valentine is a cousin. She was born in China and served as a nurse during the world war. Miss Valentine had not seen her cousin since before the war and the visit was a delightful one.

Thru the Knot Hole

A Glimpse of Building Activity

Vol. 1. JULY 10, 1936. No. 31.

Our new paint line — Murphy's is arousing a lot of interest. The quality of Murphy products is known to practically all painters and the general public is getting acquainted with it and liking it. Did you know that you can get two or more colors from one gallon can of paint? You can do it with Murphy's. Ask us to tell you how.

Contractor H. D. Holcomb is constructing a large addition to the Greentree home in the hills west of the Grass Valley-Nevada City highway. Many new homes are being added to this district.

A frameless window screen, doing away with the necessity of painting, is one of our latest items in stock. Can be installed from the inside of the house without a ladder and can be taken down, rolled up and put away for the winter.

Rudy Berggren the jeweler is improving his recently erected cottage in the hills with a coat of Golden State Creolinium Shingle Stain. This stain which comes in many colors was recently used by Major Chapman to preserve and beautify the shingle roof on his home on the Downieville Highway.

Palco Redwood Bark insulation has recently been improved. New machinery has been installed at the plant at Scotia and the new processes used removes practically all of the dust. This makes for easier application and instead of one and one quarter pounds per square foot on ceilings the same insulation can now be obtained with one pound of the bark.

Contractor Howard Ross has started the job of remodeling the Rose Fashion Shop at the corner of Pine and Commercial Sts. When completed this business place will present a fine, modern appearance.

There is always something to be thankful for:

COUNTIES VARY IN PERCENTAGE OF CONVICTIONS

BERKELEY, July 9.—San Francisco convicts 65 per cent, Los Angeles county 74 per cent and Alameda county 86 per cent of the felony cases which reach their respective superior courts.

Although less than 5 per cent of the felony cases prosecuted in the courts originate in the grand jury generally, the arguments for the abolition of that body are not always well taken. Evidence is obtained by the grand jury that can be obtained in no other way, and it does a great deal of independent investigation.

Court trials are usually settled more quickly and with less expense and furore than jury trials and they seem to be on the increase in California. However, with the large turn over of judges through election, etc., the human element is an important consideration either way.

It takes an average of 45 days in Alameda county, 73 days in Los Angeles county and 78 days in San Francisco to dispose of felony cases which go through the process of a court or jury trial. Homicide, traffic and theft cases consume the most time. Sex cases take longer to try in San Francisco and Alameda counties than in Los Angeles county; in the last named county they are disposed of in a shorter time, on the average, than all other felony prosecutions.

The state should create a single system for collecting information on all felony arrests in order that an exact record may be kept at all times, the reason for delays determined and corrected and the public kept accurately informed. At present certain statistics are being collected independently by the judicial council and the attorney general and both reports differ as to number and disposition of cases.

These facts and suggestions are contained in a publication, A System of Criminal Judicial Statistics for California, prepared by Ronald H. Beattie, research assistant in the Bureau of Public Administration, University of California, which has just been issued by the University Press. Beattie is also regional director of the United States attorney general's survey of release procedure, covering release of criminals and suspected criminals in certain western states under parole, probation and other laws.

The statistics in the publication specifically cover the fiscal year 1931-1932, but, according to Beattie the conditions referred to still prevail.

OVER HALF MILLION EXPECTED AT FAIR

SACRAMENTO, July 9.—California's state fair is out for a record. Response by exhibitors and inquiries from every section of the state indicate attendance will push past the half million mark. There were 450,000 persons who attended the exposition last year.

Curtain to the 82nd annual fair will be raised September 5, to remain aloft until September 14, for 10 days of fun, frolic and entertainment.

The board of directors presided over by A. B. Miller, Fontana, arranged the final stage work for the exposition in Sacramento this week.

Color will be a keynote of the grand old 10 day fiesta. The grounds have been beautified. The biggest horse racing card since Secretary Charles W. Paine became connected with the fair in 1901 is assured. The horse show, always a feature, has been made even better for 1936. There will be more and greater livestock displays than usual. The farm machinery show is expected to be one of the best. The 4-H and Future Farmer groups are planning greater demonstrations. A $6,000 fireworks program has been scheduled.

And there will be plenty of money for winners. Prizes, trophies, purses and awards total more than $145,000 or approximately $10,000 more than were offered in 1935.

The amateur contest, drawing talent from every area of the state, is destined to be the biggest affair of its kind ever to be staged on the Pacific Coast. Prizes valued at thousands of dollars are offered.

Dr. and Mrs. George Thorne of Sacramento were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bosworth over the Fourth.

COLLECTION OF RARE PLANTS IS GIVEN U. C. L. A.

LOS ANGELES, July 9.—A collection of tropical and subtropical plants valued at more than $7,000 was added to the Botanical Garden on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, according to Dr. A. M. Johnson, assistant professor of botany on the Los Angeles campus. The plants, a gift from the Torrey Pines station of the United States Department of Agriculture, number more than 600 species representing many families in various parts of the world.

"The botanical garden is not only one of the show places on the campus," stated Dr. Johnson, "but is used extensively for class instruction, and in the near future will be utilized for special lines of botanical research," Dr. Johnson has placed a private cactus collection of 300 plants at the disposal of the University, which are valuable for research purposes.

If the present rate of growth continues, he asserts, the garden will contain in the neighborhood of 2,000 plant species and will become one of the finest University collections in the west.

The latest addition includes in part: several specimens of the Syrup Palm of Chile, used in making confections; the Guadalupe Palm, native of Guadalupe Island; a fan palm from the Fiji Islands; The Piccabeen Palm from the Australian tropics; Palmettoes from southern United States and the West Indies; and a large assortment of larger and smaller palms from other lands.

The collection contains also a silk cotton tree from South America; more than three hundred species of cacti from Mexico, South America, and southwestern United States; several unique Agaves, Yuccas and Dasylirious; and an assortment of succulents of the Stonecrop family.

One specimen in particular, a large Euphorbia of a cactus-like species, Dr. Johnson values roughly at $750. The collection includes in addition several species of conifers, aralias, and many small trees and shrubs. The University was likewise successful in securing several varities of coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gregory had as visitors Mr. and Mrs. Worthy Vanderford, and Miss Claire Metzger, Woodland, Miss Jewel Gregory and Mr. George Thompson of Valleo. While here Miss Gregory and Mr. Thompson surprised the rest of the group by motoring to Reno, Nevada and getting married. Miss Metzger accompanied them and the message was phoned back after the ceremony. The party later returning to Nevada City.

JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR AUBURN ASSURED

AUBURN (Placer Co.), July 9.—Dr. John Napier, the principal of the Placer Union high school, late yesterday telephoned from San Francisco that the state board of education unanimously approved the establishment of a junior college in connection with the local high school for 1936-1937.

Napier said the action was taken on the recommendation of Vierling Kersey, the state superintendent of public instruction.

The trustees of the school have placed $8,000 in the budget to make instruction in the first year's work possible.

SCOUT CAMP AT PAHATSI OPENS

Summer Camp for Nevada and Placer county scouts opened Sunday for 52 with the swimming at 4 p. m the first activity after settling the campers in their tents.

Each camper was tested as to his swimming ability to determine what swimming class he belonged in. Only one non-swimmer was located and the first swim Monday morning found him in the hands of Waterfront Director Jim Howell making good progress.

A party of six "five day" hikers left early Monday for Lake Independence and fishing trip that would bring them west across the summit of the Sierras so they would be in position Thursday night to signal Camp 4 miles away by Morse code. This group under the leadership of "Klondike Ike" Beecher will return Friday.

Nature instruction given by Bob Robinson Monday morning was put into practice with a nature treasure hunt in the afternoon. Sun helmets, the camp hat, are blossoming out in colors with hat honors already earned. The two camp troops named Palisade and Donner each have a troop insignia for the hat in addition to the regular camp emblem.

M. H. Ellestad of Auburn will have the new swimming dock in the lake completed Monday afternoon and will complete a 16 foot pier extension from the shore dock on Tuesday.

FINGER PRINTING FOR DRIVERS IS RECOMMENDED

SACRAMENTO, July 9.—It takes more than an application to obtain a driver's license to operate a motor vehicle in California.

Exactly 3406 persons will testify to this fact, following a report from Ray Ingels, director of motor vehicles, that this number of citizens failed to pass examinations for drivers' licenses during the month of May. Of the number of failures, Ingels reported that 237 persons definitely were refused the privilege of operating vehicles because of their inability to satisfy department of motor vehicles of their ability to safely handle an automobile.

More than 3,500,000 drivers are now licensed by department of motor vehicles to operate cars in California and the state traffic safety advisory committee has recommended that each of these operators be fingerprinted to assure identification in event of accident.

HAND TO HAND

"He started dragging me again and Chris struggled with him and tried to make him let go of me. The short man pointed the gun at me and told me to get back in the car. I got back in the car and as I did so, I saw the crank lying there on the seat.

"I picked it up and went back and hit the tall man three times on the head and I also struck the short man when he was scuffling with Chris. I hit him on the back and the next time. I hit him he ducked, and the big man grabbed me and Chris started to fight with him, and the short man put the gun in my back as I was backing toward their car to see if I could get the license number.

"The short man stuck the gun in my back and told me to get away from the license number or he would shoot me.

"THEY SHOT ME"

"Chris then came over and grabbed hold of him and told him to leave me alone and then the tall man grabbed me. All of a sudden and I heard a bang and then Chris hollered "They shot me" and that he was going to die.

"The tall man told me to get back in the car and he dragged me to the car. Chris did not fall; he started toward the license plate between the two fenders and the tall man hit him and he fell down. Then he hollered for me and I ran to him and he kneeled beside him and the tall man went around the head of the car and walked over to me and hit me under the chin and I fell down the bank.

"After I rolled down the bank I crawled half way up and hid behind a bush on the edge of the highway and they were looking for me. One of them said: 'The dame is gone,' and they tried to push our car over the bank and they could not do it and then they got in their car and drove away.

"I crawled up the bank and got Chris and put him in the car and then went down the highway and hollered for help."

HELP AT LAST

She then detailed being taken up by a young couple who brought her to the city hall in Nevada City, where the sheriff's office was notified and they went back to the scene of the affray and Meyer was brought to the sanitarium.

District Attorney Stoll then asked her, "have you ever seen the two men you have described since that time?"

She replied, "I saw them yesterday."

"Had you seen them between that time and yesterday when you saw them in the sheriff's office?"

To this question she answered, "No."

She was then asked if the men referred to were in the court room and she stood up and pointed to them as they sat beside their counsel. Mr. Armstrang and Mr. Cassettari. As she identified them, Merritt Newman shook his head as if in negation.

She also stated that she had seen the green automobile at the Williamson garage in Nevada City when taken there by Mr Stoll.

SURE IN HER IDENTIFICATION

Attorney Armstorng subjected Miss Coats to a thorough cross-examination respecting her identification of the two brothers but in no substantial particular did she depart from her original story.

Dr. Carl P. Jones, who performed the autopsy, told of the wound in the murdered man's chest, and partially identified a bullet taken from Meyer's chest. Deputy Sheriff W. D. Woods recited the events of the night when he was called a few minutes after midnight to go up the Tahoe-Ukiah grade and bring the mortally wounded Meyer down to the Nevada City Sanitarium.

Miss Coats identified the shot gun found some weeks after the murder in the blackberry patch adjacent to the Newman home in Grass Valley, as similar to the small bore shot gun used on the night of January 12.

HELD TO ANSWER

Following the taking of testimony for the prosecution, District Attorney Vernon Stoll stated that since the defense would offer no testimony, he would call no more witnesses. Judge Mobley thereupon held the two men to answer and ordered them into the sheriff's custody without bail. Their trial, owing to the annual vacation of the court will probably not take place until September.

Where We Fell Down

—It was a delightful conversation until
One of our number spoke out of turn—

"Please tell me the whys and the whyfores
Of American primary laws;"
No answer disturbed the shocked silence,
Ensued an embarrassing pause;
The artist gave no explanation,
The business man said, "I don't know."
The teacher was palpably puzzled,
I arose and made ready to go.

We had babbled of things esoteric,
Of sun spots and wandering star;
We shared in a slight, sketchy knowledge
Of matters unique and afar;
We knew much of far away countries—
Their habits, their problems and cares,
But thought seemed to dwindle and perish
When we spoke of our homeland affairs.

We had all read the late trashy novels,
We had all seen the last silly play,
We could hum mawkish strains fresh from jazzland
And utter the slang of the day;
But the Star Spangled Banner quite foiled us
With its strangely unknown second verse,
The state constitution bemused us
And the laws of the land served us worse.

Now we are intelligent creatures,
The products of certified schools;
There's no psycho-analyst living
Who would label us morons or fools;;
We're acquainted with alien countries,
So "Why, tell me why," I intone,
"Are we all so painfully lacking
In knowledge concerning our own"?

—A. MERRIAM CONNER.

The ancient roadster driven by John Minarch of the Broad street garage in the fourth of July parade is now resting in the brush in the rear of his shop. Minarich is still lame from the bucking antics of the Lizzie, but it was originally designed to buck, having off-set hubs in the rear wheels.
